

Undergraduate Essay Competition!

The Albert M. Greenfield Digital Center for the History of Women's Education invites Bryn Mawr College students to write an essay discussing

'Why single sex education matters today'

The winner will receive a $500 cash prize, sponsored by Bryn Mawr College Friends of the Library, and the winning entry will be posted on the Center's website

Given recent discussion in the media about the pros and cons of attending a single-sex institution such as Bryn Mawr, we are at a point of critical reflection. This competition provides a forum for you to express your views on single-sex institutions in higher education today. Does it still matter?

Rules for Entry:

- ❖ Only one essay can be permitted per student
- ❖ You can argue for or against the essay title
- ❖ Essays should be no longer than 1,000 words
- ❖ All essays should be submitted by Friday January 27th 2012 via email to the Project Director, Dr. Jennifer Redmond at jredmond@brynmawr.edu

BRYN MAWR

The Friends of Bryn Mawr
College Library

The Albert M.
GREENFIELD
Foundation

The Albert M. Greenfield Digital Center for the History of Women's Education,
Bryn Mawr College

Promoting scholarship and discussion on the history of women's education
<http://greenfield.brynmawr.edu/>